PRIESBURG, VA., July 15, 1889.

Mr. Henry Mason, a merchant and planter of Sussex county, died very suddenly at his residence at Stony Creek yesterday. Mr. Mason was one of the representatives from Sussex to the recent Mahone-Republican conference held in this city, and while here was taken unwell. Yesterday he felt well enough to enjoy some leumonage, but soon after drinking the beverage he was taken suddenly worse, and in a short time was dead. The deceased was a successful farmer, and one of the largest peanutgrowers in the county. He was about forty-five years of age, and leaves a family.

Mr. George Phelps, while attempting to cross Campbell's bridge to-day, fell over the edge of the river's bank and was severely injured and narrowly escaped drowning. The new bridge just thrown across the river at that point has not been completed. The railings at the sides have not been put up, and persons who cross are warned that they do so at their own risk. Mr. Phelps is partially blind, and to this fact his accident promptly went to his rescue.

Mesers, Irving P. Hoag and Frank A. Owen were yesterday ordained to the order of deacons in the Second Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. S. K. Wren, officiating.

A somewhat singular case appeare? upon the docket of the Mayor's Cour: this morning. It was that of a boy who had been arrested on a warrant sworn out by the father, charging bim with housebreaking and robbery. The housebreaking was not proved, but the recovery of clothing belonging to the parent from the person of the son was deemed proof enough in the absence of any explanation as to where they were obtained to convict the boy of larceny, and he was sent to jail for ninety days.

A very dudish-looking darky, dressed in Chover Deror, July 14, 1889.

Engene Johnson, son of Captain Johnson of the steamer on Staunton river, was drowned to-day about 1 o'clock. He went into the river to bathe in company with a colored boy, got in deep water, and drowned before any one could get to him. He was about eighteen years old and beloved by all who knew him—kind-hearted and accommodating. His end was a sad one and his loss a heavy one to his parents. His hody has not yet been found.

evening last. He was apparently in perfect health, and only a short while before his death had been talking to one of his sons, when he remarked that he felt a slight pain in his breast and thought he would lie down. About an hour afterwards another of his sons went to his door and knocked, and, receiving no response, entered, finding him lying upon the bed face downward and dead.

The deceased was sixty-eight years of age and leaves five grown sons and a daughter, his wife having died some four years ago. He had led a long, useful, and busy life, and was highly respected by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. At the time of his death he was engaged as book-keeper for his sons at Balcony falls, and also at the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington.

Heart-disease is supposed to have been the cause of his death.

Now that the Persian Minister is about to take his departure for his country, or at least for London, where he will join the Shah, who is visiting the Queen, a number of amusing stories are related concerning him—stories which do not in the least reflect upon his eleverness or his ability to serve his sovereign most creditable here, but which plainly evidence that he is not altogether conversant with some of the pleasantries incident to Washington life. It may not be amiss if I tell you two which I heard yesterday. The Minister found when he came to Washington that he had at least two acquaintances, if not friends. They were a lady and gentleman who had for some years lived in Persia, where the gentleman was connected with a large importing house. Calls were at once exchanged and finally an invitation was extended to His Excellency to dinner. The invitation was graciously accepted. Unfortunately the former American residents in Persia had one drawback to their marital happiness—they had no children. It seems that in Persia it is the Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.1

Nonroux, July 15, 1889.
Yesterday morning Professor J. F.O.
Smith, the accomplished leader of the Navel Poet Band stationed at the navyyard, suddenly expired at his residence on Bank street of a congestive chill. He was in his usual health previous to the attack and conducted the concert the night before at Klepper's Hall. Previous to the concert he bathed twice at Ocean View, remaining in the water two hours at one bath, and the doctors think excessive bathing brought on the fatal chill.

Deceased took charge of the Naval Post band about three years ago. Previous to that he was at Newport for several years as bandmaster of the Fifth United States artillery. He was an accomplished musician and composer, and was well known and very popular in the two cities.

Captain F. W. Tomkin, who was appointed through Mahone the master shipwright of the navy-yard, has been removed, and Mr. William F. Smith appointed. The true inwardness of this move of the politicians is not exactly understood. Smith was master shipwright to the Vard for twenty-five years, going out when the Democrats came in the two cities.
